

Souls inner voice message from the source

One step away from freedom

To truly understand our path we must first learn to take steps, these steps are automatic like breathing but we don't see them as part of the equation. It is in these steps the magic unfolds. What we take for granted or do automatically, is the source, nudging us in a direction. The calling to step forward and experience life rich tapestry. When we start to think about our path, we start to make choices, we feel are relevant to what we think. This is where our life changes and free will takes hold of us. For each step leads to another, like a breathing leads to life. Once you learn to just do it, you open up to a world of guidance and wonderful experience. No longer thinking but doing. In this moment you have freed yourself from restraints and surrendered to the flow of the universe. Limitation are only in thoughts and not in doing. You may say that sometimes when I do, I might fail, but each step you cannot fail, for in each step is the opportunity for another. Only your thoughts of where that step may lead, may hinder your progress or the fear of taking that step lead you to places you may not like or thought may not. But each step if look for the big picture is one more step to freedom.
