

Souls inner voice

What a morning

Well what a morning, full of surprise and ambition. We do not seek the world in one hand but the world in both (good and bad unite in the experience). Without one we don't know the other. Focus only on the neutral and let the others be signs. Don't go with or grow the picture but realise the message can appear. We look too far into stuff that doesn't matter. Many who walk this path, lose sight of true calling, will you be taken over by all not real. Fears and doubts are signs to everlasting freedom. Many walk the walk and don't talk the talk. Why? Because they are easily distracted. A moment of great joy, can change so quickly. We spend more time with "what if" than living, breathing and enjoying the simple but productive message.

Each morning release such fears and wants to the sea and nature. Take a breathe and enjoy. Hope is but an illusion, a man made item that delivers us into past or future. But really we are already living what we have achieved. Already our moment is wasted unless our focus is true. For the moment, makes the rest of the moments. So why waste on what could be, its being written now in the moment.

